A TRUE MAC ADDICT

Teacher Spends $4,000 of His Own Cash for iMac Lab

And you thought you were dedicated to your job. When Maryland's Smithsburg High School asked teacher Ron Reynolds to teach a photography class, he naturally requested iMacs for the job. When he realized he was going to get PCs instead, he took matters into his own hands, spent more than $4,000 of his own money, and bought 14 refurbished iMacs, a printer, scanner, Zip drive, and digital-camera card reader. "Everyone said that I was crazy to buy 14 computers for the school," says Reynolds. "I told them, 'You think that's crazy? I intend to buy 14 more eventually.'"—NR
